THE COOPERATIVE STUDY

Introduction

Traditionally, cooperatives have been a key method for worker empowerment, providing financial security and ensuring equality of participation in economic processes. In the Philippines, credit cooperatives have been gradually increasing as they provide members with opportunities to access financial services through savings, credit, and mutual aid. Credit cooperatives differ from traditional financial institutions, which have profit as their focal point, because their operations are based on service and the promotion of mutual gain, particularly for low- to middle-income workers.

Credit cooperatives are dual-purpose organizations whose objective is to meet the economic, social, and cultural needs of their members and improve their quality of life. Additionally, the deposit services of credit cooperatives are policies aimed at improving the quality of life of members while providing credit services to them (Naranchuluun, 2020). Cooperatives empower workers to participate in decision-making processes, which leads to more just and equitable workplaces. Evidence supports this approach, as worker cooperatives and credit unions have a track record of expanding financial access and strengthening economic security (Smith, 2023).

The creation of LiftCart Credit Cooperative is grounded in these values. It will serve not only as a cooperative offering savings and loan products but also as an organization that fosters solidarity and empowerment among grocery workers. By pooling resources and practicing democratic governance, members can achieve financial sustainability and strengthen solidarity as a group. Most importantly, cooperatives are institutions that promote communal well-being by fostering a sense of ownership and agency over their future.

Locally and globally, cooperative development has become increasingly popular as a sustainable alternative to traditional employment and financial systems. As the cost of living continues to rise and the demand for inclusive financial services grows, cooperatives have proven to be resilient even during economic downturns. In the local context, the Cooperative Development Authority (CDA) reported that as of December 31, 2022, there were 491 registered cooperatives in Rizal Province, with 126 issued a valid Certificate of Compliance and 32 newly compliant cooperatives. This reflects the growing cooperative movement in the province and highlights the potential for establishing LiftCart Credit Cooperative. Nationally, the CDA has also documented a steady increase in registered cooperatives, indicating that cooperatives have become a vital part of community economic development.

The objective of this study is to assess the feasibility and sustainability of establishing LiftCart Credit Cooperative for grocery workers. It seeks to determine whether the cooperative will be able to effectively serve both economic and social purposes, identify possible challenges in organizing and managing it, and propose realistic strategies that will ensure its long-term success. Finally, the proponents aim to improve the welfare of members and demonstrate how a worker-owned cooperative can serve as a model of empowerment and resilience in the Philippine context.

Background of the Study

The Philippines is a developing country where many low-income workers, particularly grocery employees, face persistent challenges in meeting their financial needs.

These workers often experience insufficient wages, unstable employment, and limited access to affordable credit services. Consequently, they are compelled to rely on informal lenders such as “5-6,” who impose exorbitant interest rates. As a result, financial instability arises and a recurring cycle of debt is perpetuated, disproportionately affecting an already vulnerable sector of society.

Several studies underscore the barriers encountered by low-income individuals in accessing formal financial services. For instance, Malisa (2011) identifies stringent collateral requirements as a primary obstacle, since many low-income citizens lack the assets necessary to qualify for bank loans. Similarly, Shao (2009) highlights the prohibitive effect of high interest rates, which increase the cost of borrowing and render financial resources inaccessible to individuals in need of capital for education, healthcare, or small business ventures. Consequently, the absence of affordable and reliable credit options compels many low-income individuals to rely on informal lending, which often imposes exploitative terms. Moreover, Shao (2009) asserts that the lack of access to fair loans significantly restricts opportunities for economic advancement and further entrenches poverty. In the Philippine context, 58.4% of the population is classified as belonging to the low-income sector (PSA). Furthermore, the rising inflation rate exacerbates the financial vulnerability of this group, thereby making informal lending schemes a common recourse. However, irregular incomes and unforeseen expenses frequently hinder timely repayment, reinforcing recurring cycles of debt.

Given these conditions, the establishment of a credit cooperative for grocery workers presents a viable and sustainable intervention. Specifically, the LiftCart Credit Cooperative seeks to enhance the quality of life of grocery workers in Barangay San Juan, Taytay, Rizal, a highly populated and progressive area with a significant concentration of grocery employees compared to other barangays in the municipality. In addition, the area demonstrates a strong demand for affordable financial services, making it a strategic location for the introduction of a cooperative that provides fair lending, promotes savings, and strengthens financial literacy among its members.

Grocery workers in the Philippines experience significant financial struggles, often earning minimum wages that barely cover basic living costs, making it difficult for them to afford essentials such as rent, groceries, and healthcare (Clemente, 2025). Moreover, they are frequently burdened by unstable incomes, insufficient savings, and reliance on high-interest informal credit, conditions which heighten their vulnerability during emergencies (S. Manager, 2015a). Thus, through the provision of equitable financial services and the promotion of cooperative principles, the LiftCart Credit Cooperative aims to address these gaps, foster financial inclusion, and contribute to the long-term stability and overall welfare of its members and their families.

Chapter 2

SUMMARY OF THE STUDY

Name of the Organization

The name of the organization is LiftCart Credit Cooperative; it holds a dual meaning. It signifies both the physical act of grocery workers lifting and pushing their carts every day in service to customers. At the same time, it signifies the cooperative's commitment to lifting the grocery workers' financial capacity enabling them to move forward toward their goals.

The proponents established this concept in response to the growing financial challenges faced by the grocery workers, especially in the wake of economic uncertainties, rising cost of living and unstable income patterns.

LOGO

The organization logo is a powerful visual representation of movement service and collective growth. At the center of the design the stylized "LC" which functions both as and acronym for LiftCart and as a symbolic grocery cart. The "L" shaped like the front name of a cart, represents lifting and leadership—the cooperative's role in guiding members toward financial stability and empowerment. The "C", forming the body of the cart, symbolized community, cooperation and continuity, emphasizing that members are not isolated individuals but part of a shared economic journey.

Moreover, the wheels beneath the LC reinforce the idea of mobility and access. They represent the cooperative's function as a tool that helps members move forward—financially, socially and professionally. Just as cart enables workers to transport goods efficiently, LiftCart enables members to carry their financial goals with ease and confidence. The upward arrow emerging from the cart symbolizes progress, aspiration and upliftment. It reflects the cooperative's mission to not only provide financial services but to actively raise the quality of life of its members. The arrow's forward motion conveys ambition and momentum, showing that LiftCart is future-oriented and growth-driven. The circular motion around the cart represents the cycle of mutual assistance. Additionally, the blue color stands for trust, reliability and security. Lastly, the orange color represents energy, warmth and optimism.

A strategic location is a critical aspect of a business. According to Oppong (2024), "A well-researched location can be powerful catalyst for growth. A great location in business fosters customer engagement, attracts top talent, and streamlines business operations. Choosing the right location allows businesses to be easily accessible to their target market". Additionally, as Steve Jobs said "Get closer than ever to your customers. So close that you tell them what they need well before they realize it themselves." Hence, LiftCart Credit Cooperative has chosen location near the groceries stores of its target market. It is located at 169 Kadalagahan St. Brgy. San Juan, Taytay Rizal. The location is perfect spot for grocery workers since it is accessible and conveniently located near the Old Taytay Public Market and is only a five-minute ride from the New Taytay Public Market, making it easily accessible for the grocery workers to visit if they have inquiries or financial difficulties.

This cooperative offers short-term personal loans, or livelihood loans, at reasonable interest rates, and at payment intervals that work with the individual's schedule (quarterly or semi-annually).

LiftCart Credit Cooperative's main purpose is to provide financial assistance for grocery workers' living expenses and for emergencies, as well as small business opportunities for growth. This cooperative offers additional assistance to its members by assisting them in learning how to save money and develop responsible financial habits. LiftCart Credit Cooperative wants to support the economic stability of grocery workers while creating an environment of co-operation, trust and mutual growth in their communities.

Detailed Layout

Figure 10 shows the facility layout which strategically located at 169 Kadalagahan St., Brgy. San Juan, Taytay, Rizal. As a startup, we have decided not to rent a space until the year 5 of operation, and the office will be set up on a property owned by one of our members, the Galang Family.

The total office area measures 42 square meters (7.0 m x 6.0 m), designed to efficiently support daily operations and client services. The space includes a front desk, waiting area, and comfort room. The front desk, with a floor area of 2.2 m to 2.4 m, is positioned at the entrance of the office to ensure accessibility and effective client engagement. Its primary function is to welcome clients and assist them with inquiries related to the cooperative and the loan application process.

Additionally, the waiting area is intended to provide a comfortable space for clients while awaiting the processing and approval of their loan applications. This layout ensures a professional, organized, and client-friendly environment that supports the cooperative's operational needs.

Chapter 7

SUMMARY & FINDINGS/ CONCLUSIONS and RECOMMENDATIONS

This chapter presents a summary of the findings from the analyzed data in Chapter 4, along with the conclusions and recommendations derived from the study's results.

Summary

The feasibility of the LiftCart Credit Cooperative was determined through this study. To gather the necessary data, the proponents primarily utilized survey questionnaires. The Barangay San Juan, Taytay, Rizal have six hundred eleven (611) total population of grocery workers. From the target population, the proponents selected two hundred (200) respondents to represent the study population composed of various grocery-related workers.

The findings revealed that 148 out of the 200 respondents, or 74%, expressed their willingness to join the proposed cooperative. On the other hand, 611 grocery workers represent the entire population in the area, while, 452 individuals represent the 74% to project the initial membership for the first year of operation. The proponents used conservative approach which is equivalent to 50% of the target market was considered, yielding as estimated 226 initial members

Findings

Based on the data gathered and analyzed in Chapter 4 and the Financial Study, the following findings were revealed:

Profile of Respondents

The majority of the respondents were grocery workers aged 21-30 years old. In terms of sex 54% or 108 were male while 46% or 92 were female. Most respondents were regular workers (79%), indicating stable employment, while 17% were contractual workers. In terms of household monthly income, the largest portion of respondents (45%) earned between ₱15,001 to ₱25,000, confirming that the target market belongs largely to the low- to lower-middle-income sector.

Market Viability

The market study results indicate strong acceptance and demand for LiftCart Credit Cooperative. Out of 164 qualified respondents, 90% (148 respondents) expressed willingness to join the cooperative. The primary reason for joining a cooperative was financial access (62%), while 68% of borrowers identified household expenses as their main purpose for borrowing. The preferred loan amount was ₱10,000 (63%), with monthly payment terms (53%) and online payment methods (77%) being the most favored. These findings confirm strong demand for the cooperative's credit services.

Financial Viability

In terms of financial viability, the cooperative demonstrates a strong and consistent upward trend in revenue over the five-year period. Total annual income begins at ₱70,152 in 2027 with 26 clients. It then increases to ₱111,456 in 2028, reflecting a 58.9% growth rate as the number of clients rises to 41. This growth continues in 2029, where income reaches ₱177,215, representing another 58.96% increase driven by the expansion to 65 clients.

The upward movement remains strong in 2030, with total income climbing to ₱281,772, equivalent to a 59.0% growth rate from the previous year. By 2031, the cooperative achieves its highest projected revenue of ₱448,017, marking a further 59.02% increase, supported by a client base of 164. Overall, the projection confirms that the cooperative is financially viable, showing strong profitability growth and long-term financial stability.

Conclusion

Based on the findings of the study, the following conclusions were drawn:

The respondents were within the working-age group of 21–60 years old, with the majority belonging to the 21–30 age bracket, comprising 70% or 140 individuals. Most of the respondents were male, accounting for 54% or 108 individuals. In terms of civil status, 46% or 92 were single. The majority were regular grocery workers, representing 79% or 158 respondents. Regarding to work category, most respondents were cashiers, totaling 74 individuals or 37%. Lastly, the majority reported a monthly household income ranging from ₱15,001 to ₱25,000, which accounted for 45% or 90 of the respondents. Moreover, a significant portion of the respondents were not members of any existing cooperative, indicating limited access to formal cooperative financial services and highlighting the potential demand for the proposed LiftCart Credit Cooperative.

Furthermore, 148 showed willingness to become members, while a large number also indicated interest in availing the cooperative's credit services due to affordable interest rates and flexible payment terms. Thus, the proponents concluded that LiftCart Credit

Cooperative is feasible, based on the validated information and data gathered, as supported by the positive market acceptance and favorable financial projections reflected in the study.

Recommendation

Based on the conclusions derived from the study, the following recommendations are presented.

The Proponents. Through the development of this feasibility study, the proponents have gained the essential technical knowledge and operational understanding necessary to manage a credit cooperative effectively. Given the favorable results of the study, the proponents are encouraged to pursue the establishment of LiftCart Credit Cooperative and remain committed to its long-term operation to serve grocery workers, market vendors, and delivery personnel.

Future Members. LiftCart Credit Cooperative is designed to provide accessible and affordable financial assistance to individuals engaged in grocery and market-related livelihoods. Future members are encouraged to actively participate in savings and credit programs and to practice responsible borrowing. Active participation will strengthen the cooperative's capital base and ensure continuous access to affordable financial services.

The Cooperative. LiftCart Credit Cooperative should prioritize effective credit risk management, strengthen collection policies, and expand financial literacy programs for members. Continuous monitoring of loan performance and member satisfaction is recommended to maintain financial stability and trust

Future Researchers. Future researchers are encouraged to conduct similar studies using a larger sample size and extended time horizon to further evaluate the long-term impact of credit cooperatives on the financial stability of low-income workers.
